Colours

Below are the recommended JMAN brand colour palette to use within PowerPoint

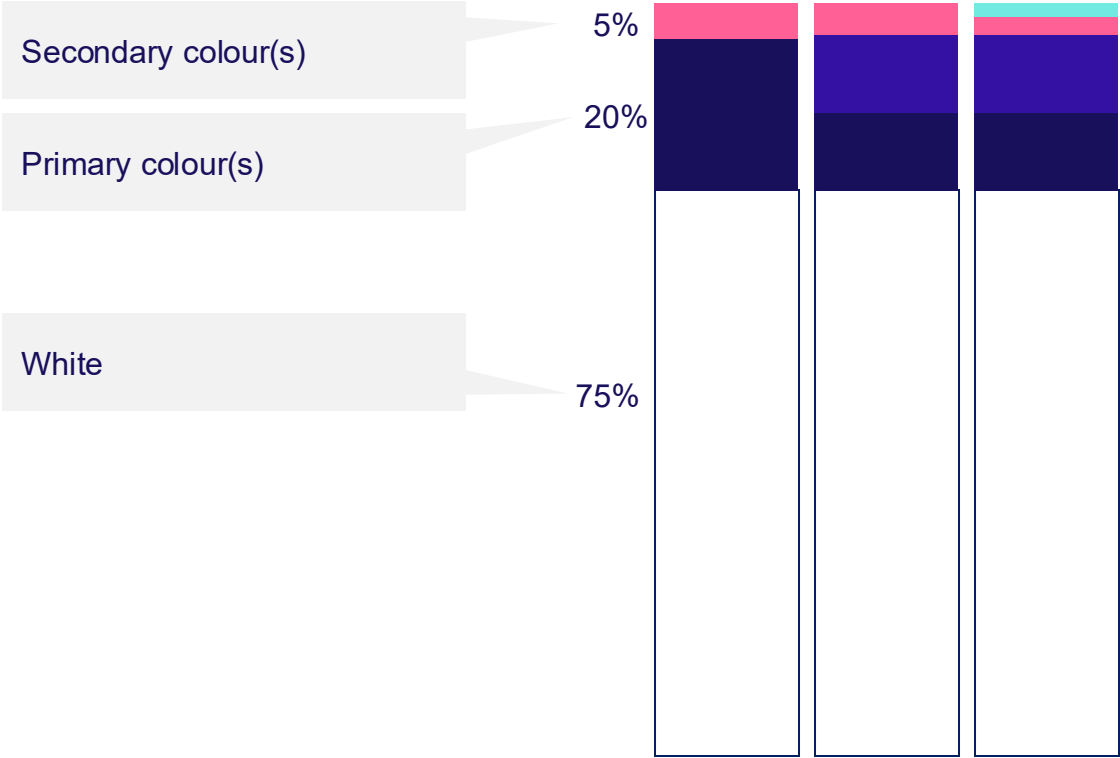

Primary Colours			Secondary Colours
White 255, 255, 255	Midnight Blue 25, 16, 91	Trypan Blue 52, 17, 163	Rose 255, 97, 150	Turquoise 113, 234, 225	Light Blue 38, 212, 240	Amethyst 161, 107, 219
Tertiary			RAG
Berry 166, 38, 94	Emerald 22, 151, 142	Grey 217, 217, 217 / 242, 242, 242	Red 255, 0, 0	Amber 255, 192, 0	Green 0, 176, 80	255, 85, 85	255, 203, 45	42,189,109
						255, 128, 128	255, 213, 85	85, 202, 138

- Colours to be used in order from left to right starting with midnight blue
- Colours from the secondary palette should be used sparingly for subtle highlights and where the design would benefit from a contrasting colour. These should never appear as large blocks of colour which would overpower the primary palette.
- White text to be used on all colour backgrounds with the exception of turquoise, which should use midnight font.
- To indicate up/down or good/bad, use the tertiary red and green. For full RAG in a table it is acceptable to use the non-brand red, amber and green as highlighted above.

Colours

Colour usage

Slide colour proportion examples

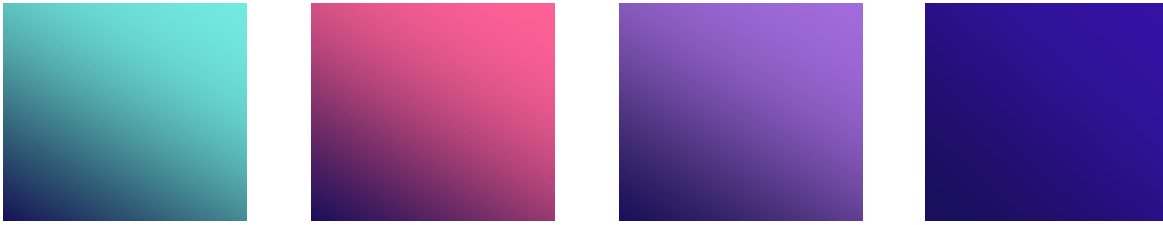

On any given slide, try to keep to a rough colour ratio like this (remember to work left to right through the palette when adding new colours).

Be sparing with your highlight colour to ensure it stands out!

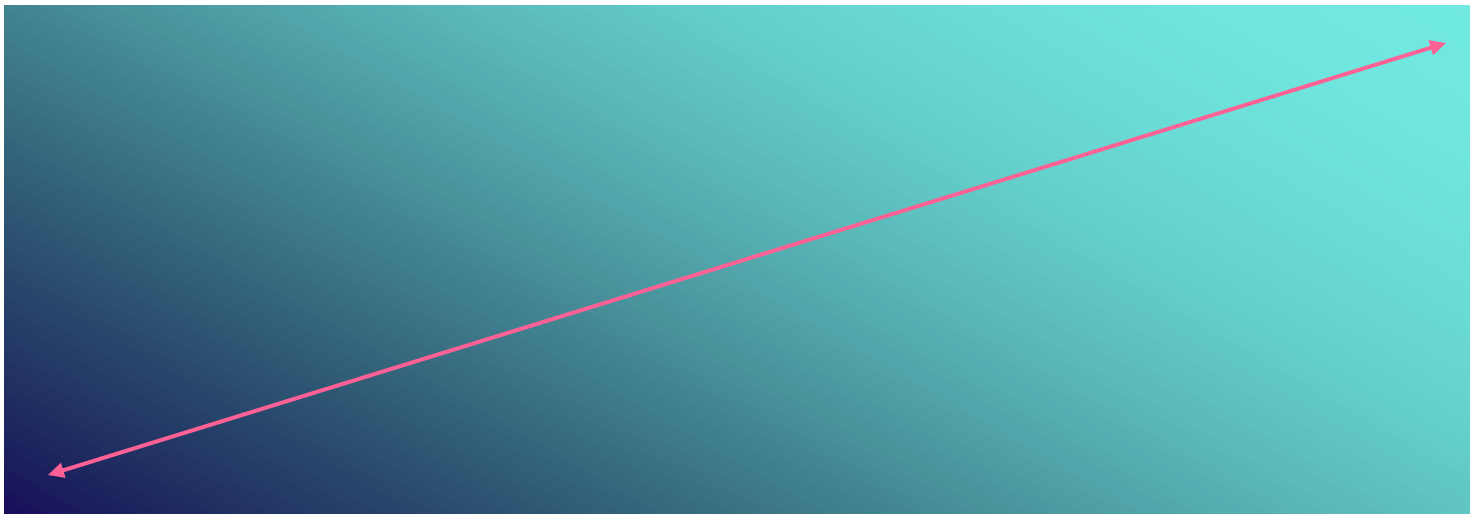

Colours

Gradient usage

Primary Gradients

Secondary Gradients

- Gradients go from bottom left to top right, dark to light.
- These are the only gradients to be used
- Make sure text is visible across the colour gradient

Arrows

- Do not use any auto shape arrows – an arrow should be an isosceles triangle where the height is 1/8 of the base
- If the base is over 3cm a lighter colour should be used to prevent dark blocks of colour on a slide
- If you need to create an arrow from scratch, you can set the proportions correctly by setting the width to 8, height to 1, and then scaling as required (hold shift to preserve proportions).

Call out box style

Call-out boxes should generally be used to highlight key information. Therefore it will usually be appropriate to use one of the secondary colours, with pink as a first choice.

Kicker style

A kicker or “so what?” box can be used to add emphasis to the conclusion of a slide.

The text should be a single line only, in the standard parallelogram and a secondary highlight colour.

Always ask yourself if you are adding clarity or confusion for your audience

Line Style

- All lines should be 1pt and should appear in the following colours:
 - Midnight Blue: 25.16.91
 - Trypan Blue: 52.17.163
 - Rose: 255.97.150
- If using a dashed line it should appear in Midnight blue, regular dash only

- Layouts can be found through the down arrow next to “New Slide”
- Do not edit the slide master as this can cause problems down the line!

Client and Partner Logo Rules

Client and partner logo rules

Partner logos or client logos should match the style of the JMAN logo. For example, if you are using a coloured cover page with a white version of the JMAN logo, you should use a white version of the client's logo.

There is a cover slide option with a white background and coloured JMAN logo, in case you are not able to get the white version of the client's logo.
